cleanup of the Willamette River

To ☐ HarborComments

The draft plan does not adequately clean up the contamination of the river. Contaminated sediment should be removed comprehensively.

Monitoring natural recovery is a do nothing strategy of dubious effectiveness.

Toxic dredged sediment must be taken to a landfill.

Companies responsible for the pollution should pay for a comprehensive cleanup.

It appears to us that your draft plan is inadequate and aimed at saving the government and the polluting companies money rather than solving the problem comprehensively.
